

Building Capacity of Regional Coordinators & Amplifying Voices of Primate Educators Worldwide

Awarded by the Born Free Foundation through the Primate Society of Great Britain in April 2013

Abstract submitted by Amy Clanin, PEN Founder & Executive Director (amy@primateeducationnetwork.org)

Primate Education Network (PEN) is a global network dedicated to connecting and empowering primate conservation educators. Our overarching goal is to advance the field of primate conservation education by addressing three needs of educators: connections, resources, and training.

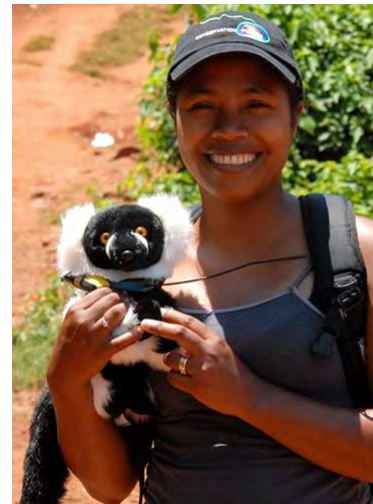

This project's focus was to build the capacity of PEN's seven Regional Coordinators in Latin America, Africa, and Asia by providing the support they needed to communicate with and encourage collaboration among primate conservation educators.

PEN's Regional Coordinators play an important role in representing the network at meetings and events, facilitating workshops, sharing primate education resources, and highlighting educators through our storytelling blog series.

Funding received from the Born Free Foundation through the Primate Society of Great Britain was applied towards PEN's Founding Regional Coordinator Starter Kits, communications, transport, and printing of brochures, business cards, and team t-shirts.

Results:

- Maintained an internal Connections Database to record and track communications among 400+ colleagues
- Curated 100+ downloadable primate education materials for educators on PEN's Resource Library www.primateeducationnetwork.org/resources
- Highlighted 20+ primate conservation educators through PEN's Educator of the Month and Voices from the Field storytelling blog series www.primateeducationnetwork.org/share-your-story
- Represented the network at 35+ conferences, regional meetings, and events www.primateeducationnetwork.org/events
